FROM OUR COUNTY COUNCILLOR

As you may be aware, for the last year there has been an effective moratorium on new development in all the Towns and Parishes that are in the River Camel catchment, due to the excessive phosphate levels in the river. This isn't just a local problem and a recent parliamentary committee inquiry into water quality came to the following conclusions:

- Poor water quality in English rivers is a result of chronic underinvestment and multiple failures in monitoring, governance and enforcement
- Only 14% of English rivers meet good ecological status, with pollution from agriculture, sewage, roads and single-use plastics contributing to a dangerous 'chemical cocktail' coursing through our waterways. Not a single river in England has received a clean bill of health for chemical contamination.
- Bacteria found in sewage and animal slurry can cause sickness. Yet few river users are able to make informed decisions about when it is safe to use rivers downstream of storm overflows and wastewater treatment works.
- The build-up of high levels of nutrients, such as phosphorus and nitrogen, from sewage and animal waste, is choking rivers with algal blooms that reduce oxygen levels, suffocating fish, plants and invertebrates and the impact of wastewater from sewage treatment works and sewer overflows is preventing 36% of water bodies from achieving good ecological status.
- The impact of agricultural diffuse pollution is the most common form of pollution preventing rivers from achieving good ecological status, and intensive livestock and poultry farming is putting enormous pressure on catchments.
- Fats, oils and greases, and cleaning and hygiene products containing plastic, are causing huge problems for drainage systems when they are poured away in sinks or flushed down the toilet

If, like me, you are very concerned about all of this and the continuing decline in the water quality of the River Camel and its tributaries I hope you will come along to a public meeting I am organising to bring together all of the various agencies and stakeholders and to debate a way forward.

EDITORIAL

Second homes - are they a good thing or detrimental to tourist hotspots like Cornwall?

The people of Whitby have voted in a local referendum to end second home ownership, angry that properties are now way beyond the means of local people. A familiar story and one that resonates in St. Ives where there was an overwhelming vote six years ago to ban any new homes that were not for "principal residence".

I can understand both sides of the argument. How many young people can afford to step on to the first rung of the property ladder? The prices here are soaring and are way beyond the finances of many locals. On the other hand, I know lovely people who visit their second homes as often as possible and make a point of supporting local business and indeed, I see them regularly at fundraisers, anxious to do their part for the village.

The housing availability in our village has undoubtedly been helped by new builds, aimed specifically at local people. This emphasis on affordable housing offers the chance, especially to young families, to have a home of their own while staying in the area they know and love.

I freely admit to dismay when I see very expensive, ultra-modern design homes (I am being tactful here) with drawn blinds and deserted driveways in picture postcard, coastal villages. The houses are obviously empty until the next visit. One family I know prefers to escape to their Tuscany dream home, rather than the luxury property in North Cornwall, which remains forlorn and empty for most of the year.

Cornwall villages are changing but it can't all be blamed on second homeowners. Covid didn't help. People became used to ordering supermarket deliveries, rather than using their local shop. I plead guilty here although I choose deliveries through necessity. Families are looking for the cheapest offers at a time when prices are rising alarmingly and every penny counts - cheapest offers usually mean supermarkets. Yet here too there is a problem. With fuel reaching astronomical figures, journeys are having to be curtailed.

Look at our village on a Saturday morning. It used to be so busy with customers going from the shop to queue at Kevin's and stopping to chat on the way. Now the hub of the village depends on Churchtown and the White Hart. This has a knock-on effect. People who were in the village to shop would often drop in at coffee mornings. Will they bother now?

A drastic change in the bus services means St. Teath is a village for car owners. People like me will have to consider a move to somewhere where access to vital things like medical appointments is easier.

St. Teath is changing. For better or worse?

ST TEATH SCHOOL REPORT

It has been another very busy time for the school, with so many lovely events for us to take part in. Our children entered in the Royal Cornwall School competition with excellent success. Elm, our Reception & Year 1 class, won 1st place in the wheelbarrow category. Sycamore, our Year 3 & 4 class, took 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th places in the bunting category. And Millie, from Year 6, picked up an individual award: 4th place overall for her clay flower.

We have had some extra-special days including a Jubilee Tea Party. The children listened to royal music and celebrated with a vast array of food. They were even fortunate enough to have a visit from the 'Queen,' herself. We were able to give each child a book and, a medal, paid for by the Parish Council, as mementos of the event. We do so appreciate the support our village gives us.

Recently, we also held a French Day at school to help make our children more aware of other cultures. All 4 classes had a lovely day of singing, art, and creativity. In the afternoon we came together as a school to have a crepe masterclass from Liv and Emma of Froggy's Cuisine, before sampling lots of French food. The children all dressed in French colours and we learnt a great deal about French culture.

This month has also seen some external testing for some of our pupils, including our year 6 who sat their end of school SATs. We were so proud of how the children approached this week – their attitude and application were first class; Mr Howard and I are proud of how these children have grown academically but also as individuals. It was lovely to take them to Newquay on the Friday after the tests to celebrate with swimming and trampolining at Waterworld, as well as consuming cakes at Pauline's.

As well as all of this, we have had various trips to the beach and the local church; our Key Stage 2 pupils have had a week's swimming block at Camelford and Bikeability has begun for Years 5 and 6. We also had a mad hair Hat Day. There is no let-up next month with Sports Day, the Play, School Camp and children's transition to our school from PreSchool and from our school to Sir Jim's taking centre stage.

I hope you have all enjoyed the Jubilee Celebrations and that this Timepiece update finds you in good health.

OUR JOYBIRDS DANCE AS WELL!

We must say a huge thank you to everyone in the Village who organised, worked and enjoyed the Queen's Platinum Jubilee. I am proud to say that the Joybirds played their part with their two main events: The Knitted Bird Trail and the Sprightly Maids Morris Dancing Brigade. The birds we made were quite lovely. They were spread throughout the village for the children to find - in trees, on posts, gates and flower gardens. There was a total of 27 birds altogether, although some mysteriously flew away after the event, and we hope they found good homes where they can be enjoyed.

The Sprightly Maids Morris Dancing must have a special mention. I'm not quite sure what was anticipated from the advert in the Timepiece, but we blew all expectations out of the water with a wonderful display of colour, joie de vivre and humour that left the participants often breathless with laughter and the crowd cheering. I can do no better than this quote from the Cornish and Devon Post:

'Entertainment at its best by the Joybirds of St Teath with their rendition of Strictly Morris Dancing.'

and some quotes from friends: 'My son-in-law turned to me in amazement and said, "Is everyone in this village b mad?"

• Fantastic! Difficult to pin-point a favourite moment from so many...However, hats off (and handkerchiefs waved vigorously) for an absolutely sterling effort!

• I have never seen a better advert for any group. Don't be surprised if you're overwhelmed with people wanting to join the Joybirds. It was lovely to see how everyone showed St Teath's famous ability to overcome adversity and carried on despite rain, wind and a complete lack of dancing skills. What a performance - a highlight of the Jubilee weekend!

and from me: I would like to have bottled that performance and taken a swig if ever I was miserable! Such enthusiasm. I hope we stunned with our abilities and brought a smile to everyone's faces.

We will be sad to see them leave but are proud of the journeys they have been on during their time with us and know they will all fly on their next venture! This is always a busy half term with report-writing, transition, and graduation for our leavers to name a few!

Within a few minutes of my arriving to do a job, the true community spirit shone through. It was simply the highlight of my Jubilee weekend. ST TEATH NEIGHBOURHOOD PLAN

Report on the Public Consultation.

All the comments made by you, the people who live in the parish of St Teath, have now been collated and a report produced. This has been looked at by the working group and individual members have been tasked with looking further into each of the key areas.

34% of the households registered on the electoral roll were represented in the submissions made. 65% of those responding were aged 54 or over and 62% of those responding had lived in the parish for 11 or more years. This means that we still need to access the ideas and opinions of the younger groups living in the parish and the people who have moved here in the last 11 years.

Of the five key areas, the opinions about building development were the most evenly split and reflected the above profile of respondents. Resolving these key issues will form a major part of our thinking.

The other four areas of questions produced some clear answers on ideas such as cycle paths which were not popular, improving rural footpaths in the parish which were popular. There was a positive response for retaining and creating the provision of open space, restricting the size of any housing development, and making design, parking, and energy-saving part of any planning applications. Positive comments were also received for the idea of mixed housing development where first-time buyers, those wishing to move up the ladder and the elderly are all catered for. Some ideas suggested the creation of a policy which encouraged small scale economic development, but this should be of local benefit rather than tourism.

Of course, one of the major concerns of our parish is over the number of second homes and houses used as holiday lets. Finding a workable policy which will manage this will require very careful consideration if it is to tie in with national and county policies, which are often threatened but very rarely acted upon.

These are only the main points of the report which contained many good ideas both for and against the different proposed areas where localised policies would bring benefits to the parish. Our task is to create coherent and acceptable policies which will enhance the future of the parish. Hopefully this will be ready for a community-wide discussion in September, which will include an open public meeting.

BOB FOX, KERRI KITTO, project leaders.

NORTH CORNWALL MINIATURE RAILWAY, COLDNORTHCOTT, ST TEATH

I would like to thank everyone who attended our April open day. Unfortunately this will be our last open day for some time as our neighbours have complained to Cornwall Council.

Again my thanks for your donations, we have raised several thousand pounds for Cornwall Air Ambulance, maybe when this issue is resolved we can have charity events again.

A METHODIST MINISTER'S VIEW

In late May over a period of about three weeks we were harassed by a gentleman on the telephone telling us a story about our computer website having been hacked. He wanted us to open our computer to put the matter right under his instruction. We were suspicious and took some advice and ascertained that the organisation he claimed to be from was a bogus one, in other words he was a persistent scammer.

We have, as well, through experience, become suspicious of organisations which telephone us offering a free survey of a part of our home. We have discovered that this often opens the door to high pressure salesmen offering dubious products.

The above are examples of some of the dishonesty which exists in our society and through which the people involved are profiteering. Many of us, of course, would distance ourselves from being employed in such schemes, but the examples are 'symptoms' of the nature of the society in which we live.

In early June we were all sharing in various ways in the Queen's Platinum Jubilee celebrations. At that time, many comments were made in the television programmes and the national press about the importance of the Christian faith to her, her dedication to the task and the Service ethic she brings to it.

My Mother-in-Law had a saying of 'After the Lord Mayor's Show comes the dung cart.' Perhaps a euphemistic saying to use in the context – but the day following the Jubilee Celebrations we learnt that our Prime Minister was to experience a vote of no confidence in his ability to govern. It raised a range of issues of the Party-gate Scandal: honesty, truthfulness and integrity at the heart of government. Many people were surprised at the size of the minority vote - representing forty per cent of the ruling party. All of this is, of course, another example of the symptoms of the society in which we live

.The Bible's Old Testament prophets such as Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Joel, and Micah in their different generations were charged with calling people to follow God's ways for living and not their personal interests and inclinations. I think this advice is timely for today and is worthwhile for all of us to ponder and discuss.

Every blessing in your pondering.

A READER WRITES.....

Wouldn't life be dull without surprises?

Parties sometimes thrown in our honour [as long as we've had enough notice to be wearing the right outfit!]; an unexpected gift or meal out, or simply an encouraging comment.

For many the highlight of the recent Jubilee coverage was THAT royal tea party, and the discovery, after 70 years, of just what the Queen keeps in her handbag...

Jesus was a man of surprises – turning water into wine at a wedding; calming a life-threatening storm at sea with a quiet word; feeding 5,000 people with five loaves and two small fish; walking on water – wouldn't you, like so many at the time, want to hang out with a man like this? A man who, despite being crucified, dead and buried, rose again three days later, bringing the offer of new life to all. The biggest surprise ever, and a hope that will never fade...

...we are called to expect the unexpected...

Thank you to those who completed the St Teath Church survey earlier in the year. Looking at the thoughts and comments of those who replied, it's very clear that the Church is important - that we have a real place in the village, that we could, indeed should, be in a stronger place within the community, a real part of it, doing more, offering more opportunities. How inspiring is that?

Working together, we can reach that stronger place. Over the next few months, expect the unexpected. Look out for events in the church and around and about.

Guess what? We are not dull! We are not boring! We try to enable contact with Jesus in a range of ways. We smile and laugh, we long for joy, community, friendships. The church [building] and Church [people] are available; we want to be of assistance, involved; we want to be 'where it is at' in St Teath and the surrounding communities.

This year the Carnival Committee have kindly agreed that we may join the Sunday morning breakfast and share a short service, in the style of 'Breakfast at St Teath', in the Marquee – we hope to see you there, July 24th – come expecting the unexpected; and relax!

If we can assist in any way, please don't hesitate to make contact with any member of the team:

Rev Angela – 01840 212468; Rev Jeffrey – 07562 700170; Readers: Claire or Sue – 01840 212713. We are here to help and support...

The Gigspanner Big Band and Raynor Winn - SALT LINES

Sunday 10th July, 7.30pm St Endellion Church

Saltlines is an exciting new collaboration between acclaimed writer of The Salt Path, Raynor Winn, and unique folk collective Gigspanner Big Band. Together, they capture a moving portrait of the South West coast path in both old songs and new words.

Winn came into prominence in 2018 with her Sunday Times best selling memoir, The Salt Path, in which the writer and her husband decide to walk the entire South West coast path upon finding themselves unexpectedly homeless. Gigspanner Big Band appeals equally to traditionalists and those looking for something more experimental.

£20 | Students, unemployed people & under 21s: £15 Tickets available at: <https://endelienta.org.uk/>
